

Kerala Assembly Elections 2026: Decoding the electoral maze in Malabar

The 73 segments in north Kerala spread across Kasaragod, Kannur, Kozhikode, Wayanad, Malappuram, Palakkad, and Thrissur districts constitute a political mosaic where every constituency tells a different electoral story

Updated - April 07, 2026 09:48 am IST - KOZHIKODE

BIJU GOVIND

image for representation | Photo Credit: PTI

With public campaigning for the Assembly elections set to end on Tuesday evening, the 73 segments in north Kerala spread across Kasaragod, Kannur, Kozhikode, Wayanad, Malappuram, Palakkad, and Thrissur districts constitute a political mosaic where every constituency tells a different electoral story.

The region has become a battleground of intense, granular contest, with the stakes exceptionally high as Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan and six of his Cabinet colleagues fight not only to retain their seats but to transform Malabar into a high-profile referendum on the ruling Communist Party of India (Marxist) [CPI(M)]-led Left Democratic Front (LDF) government.

In Case You Missed It

Kerala Assembly elections: Shashi Tharoor says high voter turnout...

BJP, the known unknown in Kerala 2026

Kerala Assembly elections: KPCC president Sunny Joseph votes in...

LDF poised for return to power: Binoy Viswam

Kerala Assembly Elections 2026: A do-or-die battle for major fronts,...

Puducherry Assembly election: Voter turnout at 37.06% as of 11...

Kerala Assembly polls 2026: Special polling team moves to...

Deepika Padukone breaks silence on 'Dhurandhar 2', replies to trolls